Compromise Ends Hornet-Union Rift

The Hornet-College Union controversy came to a settlement yesterday afternoon in a precedent-setting Board of Publications meeting.

The Union-Hornet controversy began almost two months ago when Business Manager of the State Hornet Wayne Storrs presented a signed contract calling for four pages of advertising at the regular ad rates by Student Body President John Poswall to the Board of Publications and asked that the board take action. The College Union committee had four pages of advertising in the Nov. 9th issue of the State Hornet and another two-page supplement in the Nov. 16th issue. The College Union election was conducted on Nov. 17 and 18.

The agreement which was reached after meetings of the two concerned parties amidst controversy which threatened the removal of Hornet Editor Joanne Blenkle at one stage of the controversy by the Board of Directors, called for a compromise and the final figure for payment was $352.80. This figure was derived by the College Union and the Board of Publications in a joint meeting Tuesday. The total cost for advertising for six pages at a $1.47 column inch amounted to $705.60 and a compromise of splitting the cost was agreed upon by both parties.

Originally the Hornet had submitted to the BOP that the CU pay for the entire eight pages at the advertising rate. The BOP then weighed the case and came up with the recommendation to the College Union committee that four pages be paid for at the advertising cost and the other two pages were to be paid at cost of printing.

The College Union committee did not accept this proposal, maintaining that they should be given the rates as last year when the College Union election was proposed.

At the BOP meeting yesterday a resolution was accepted to avoid any further disagreements that might occur with

PRE-REGISTRATION BEGINS, REGISTRAR EXPECTS 7,500

An estimated 7,500 students will take part in advanced registration today and Saturday, according to registrar Dean C. Landis.

The registrar said advance registration is a complete registration process including the payment of fees which will be restricted to continuing students.

The following schedule of admission to the Women's Gym is based on class level at end of spring semester 1965. The only special priority groups are:

1—Seniors who present the signed student's copy of an "application for graduation" which was received at the graduation interview in the Registrar's office.

2—Approved Master's degree candidates who present a pink "approved enrollment card" for 500 series courses which was included in the registration packet of all graduate students who have been advanced to candidacy and approved for Project Plan I or Plan II.

Students are scheduled for registration in alphabetical groups within class level as follows:

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1966—2:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

2:00- 3:00 Priority Group.
3:00- 3:30 L-M Continuing Graduates and Seniors.

3:00- 3:30 A-D Continuing Freshmen.
3:30- 4:00 E-K Continuing Freshmen.
4:00- 4:30 Open to all—including undergraduates without adviser's signature.

At registration, Landis noted, if the class desired by a student is listed on the bulletin boards in registration as "closed," an alternate section or course should be selected.

No permission for admittance to the "closed classes" will be granted. However, in case of hardships, the instructor's permission for admittance to the class may be requested at the first class meeting of the new semester.

Students experiencing difficulty in scheduling courses to meet their general education requirements should check with the general education trouble shooting station in the gym during registration, Landis reported.

A complete set of rules and information regarding the registration procedure is available in the spring schedule of classes which may be obtained with registration materials. Additional information will also be available at the Registrars' Service Center.

SELECTIVE SERVICE PERPLEXING, MANY STUDENTS SEARCH FOR ANSWER

Male students eligible for the draft are eagerly searching for ways and means to continue their college education. However, many a question remains clouded for students about the draft and the selective service program. Just what are the IS (C) and IIS classifications? How do they affect the students, and how can they be obtained?

Brooke E. Sawyer, Jr., administrative assistant to the dean of students, has issued a release available to SSC students. It coincides with a more specific report from Thomas H. McGrath, acting dean of institutional relations and student affairs of the California State Colleges, which explains all classifications.

Four major factors determine a IIS classification (or deferment): (1) date of admission to college; (2) carrying a "full" load; (3) maintaining continuous attendance, and (4) making "satisfactory progress" towards the completion of an educational objective.

The candidate for student deferment must enter college immediately after graduation from high school, at which time (if he is over 18) he must fill out the SS Form 109. This form can be obtained from the school registrar. The SS 109 must be filled out annually and returned to the registrar to insure continuance of the IIS student classification.

Selective Service boards consider 30 units per year a "full load" for students. At times, they will continue a deferment for a student carrying 12 units if he is working to support himself or if he is attempting to improve his grade point average.

The local boards emphasize that students should balance the year to reach the 30-unit

4 Semester Plan Set For All State Colleges

The California State College system is being requested to accelerate its conversion to four-quarter, year-round operation in the next four years.

The 12-to-3 vote of the California Coordinating Council for Higher Education, last month passed, was a defeat for State College Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke and the State College Trustees' plan to convert campuses one by one on an experimental, pilot basis.

The council's decision is rated almost the same as an order that cannot be ignored. Copies of its judgment went to the Governor, the Department of Finance and the Legislative Analyst, all of whom exert authority over higher education agencies.

The council has given the State Colleges the same deadline as the University of California—1970-71—to complete

Phases Of College Life Reviewed By Legislators

Administration and faculty members from various areas of college life gathered on the Thursday before vacation to inform local legislators about the joys and pangs of an expanding campus. Three state legislators, Senator Albert S. Rodda and Assemblymen Leroy F. Greene and Edwin L. Z'berg, began their day on campus in the Sierra Room where introductions and presentations were made.

Agendas the contents of which were information on topics to be covered in the presentation were given to members of the faculty, administration and advisory board in green folders and to legislators, college President Stephen Walker and chancellor representative William B. Dunseth in engraved, green hardbound binders.

In the president's welcome, Walker expressed the hope that such a legislative conference could become an annual affair.

Get Acquainted

The object, he said, is to get better acquainted and to give the legislators an over view of the college, a sort of progress report, and to brag a bit, "as we are proud of its striving for and reaching maturity."

A coffee hour in the morning and a noon luncheon in the Ribera Room provided an opportunity for interaction and exchange of ideas among the legislators, faculty, administration, advisory board members, chancellor's office representatives and students present.

Constituent conferences were planned for after the luncheon, but due to illness not all of the legislators were able to meet with other students and faculty members.

Give Presentations

Presentations during the morning hours were made by Donald W. Bailey, dean of students, Margaret McKoane, associate dean of students—activities and housing, and Willys Folsom, acting testing officer, on activities and profile of the college.

Folsom discussed the profiles of qualifications of students, standards and how students measure up. He referred to charts and figures in the agenda which demonstrated and compared the size, growth, composition and intellectual quality of the student body.

Growth Normal

In observing that in the next 20 years Sacramento State must add 20,000 students, Folsom said "growth has become a way of life with us."

Mrs. McKoan, who discussed some of the more personal characteristics of the students, expressed the belief that it is important for students to live near the college with good access to it.

Later when John R. Cox, executive dean, gave a presentation on the campus master plan he told of current plans to increase student housing on and near the campus in the next several years.

Plan Halls

Specifically, the plans include two new high rise residence halls on campus, with a circular dining commons and a smaller house of single rooms in the area of the present residence halls. Off campus private developers are going ahead with plans for single student housing in dorms and supervised apartments in Campus Commons and married student housing in College Town.

Livingston Speaks

John C. Livingston, professor of social sciences and chairman of the statewide academic senate, represented the faculty and presented some statistics on the faculty members. Sixty per cent of the 410 faculty members have the Ph. D.

Stanley Pretzer, business manager, made the presentation on the college budget history and development. Most of the questions and remarks by legislators were made in this particular area.

The presentation on summer and extension programs by Hubert McCormick, dean of education services and summer session, was held over for the luncheon due to time.

Summer Problems

McCormick distributed a report of the 1965 session among those in attendance and reported that costs for the 1966 summer session would run about $18.50 per unit. In discussing some of the problems of the summer session McCormick said, "It is a matter of self support. We cannot afford to gamble with some programs.

"We have no way of carrying over revenue from one summer session to the other."

He added that some 24 classes had to be cancelled last summer due to lack of registration revenue.

QUARTER PLAN

the conversion.

The resolution requests the state colleges to work toward adoption of the quarter system by 1967-68 and conversion to year-round operation by the academic year 1970-71.

Three of the colleges considered "large" will be given a longer period before they must make the transition: Sacramento and San Diego, to be converted by 1974-75, and Long Beach, scheduled for 1972-73.

Study Rooms For Finals

Starting Monday additional study rooms will be available from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. in temporary buildings M and L.

One of the rooms will be available for group discussion and the other for individualized studying. The purpose of the study rooms is to provide students with a quiet place to study during the hours that the library is closed.

Ritchie Eich, ASSSC vice president, said that he felt the study rooms would be most helpful to students during finals.

He said that the first proposal had been to try and get the library to extend its hours. However, it was found that the library operates on a schedule set by the state college system. The study room proposal was then made and passed with much co-operation from the administration.

Supervision will be provided by the campus security, ASSSC Board of Directors and perhaps the Circle K.

Eich said that he is now working on providing cigaret urns and posting signs on the temporary buildings to inform students of the new study rooms. He stated that rules are needed yet and are being worked on. The rooms will be open Monday through Thursday evenings until Jan. 24. Rooms for spring semester will be made available beginning Feb. 14.

In case an emergency should occur while the rooms are in use, the following phone numbers are being publicized, according to Eich: Fire department, dial 0 or 456-4761; police, dial 0 or 442-5041; campus security, dial 454-6191.

Selective Service Troubles Students

minimum. Graduate students carrying fewer units may be considered as taking a "full load," but this is done on an individual basis with the local draft board.

Continuous attendance is described as 30 units per year for four consecutive years. Serious illness may be considered as an exception, but must be verified with the local boards.

"Satisfactory progress" is determined by the local boards. Normally it means a 2.0 or passing grade average and to determine progress, the local boards use the SS Form 109 sent in by the college and the student status questionnaire sent by the board to the student which is normally filled out during the summer.

If both of these are not completed and sent in every year, the student may have failed to establish a basis for deferment.

Students trying to obtain deferments should make sure these forms are completed annually. If they are not given the forms, they should request them, fill them out and return them.

The I-SC classification is normally the last before induction into armed services. It is a statutory deferment granted to any registrant who is a full-time student at the time he is issued an induction order, providing he is satisfactorily pursuing a course of study leading to a degree.

The I-SC deferment is good only until the end of the current academic year, and is granted only once. However, the local board may reclassify a student into the II-S classification after he has had a I-SC deferment.

If the student finds he cannot obtain the II-S or I-SC deferment after being classified 1-A, he may, within ten days, appeal the board's decision. This is done by written notice.

Within a reasonable time, the student must then submit a written notice including all the grounds which he believes may provide a basis for his appeal. During the mentioned ten-day period, the student must also request a personal appearance before his local board.

An appeal board, if the local board determines not to reopen a student classification, automatically then reviews the case. If the resulting vote is unanimous against the registrant, he has no recourse, but if there are one or more dissenting votes, he may appeal to the Presidential Appeal Board in Washington. There is no appeal from a final decision of that Appeal Board.

Bergman Films Set for Showing

Ingmar Bergman's searching philosophical films "Winter Light" and "The Silence" which are being shown on campus have two more presentations scheduled.

Placed somewhere between Catholicism and Atheism, Bergman's work is influenced greatly by his religious beliefs. A longing for knowledge about the conflict of life and the inevitability of death has provided a recurrent theme in Bergman's films. This search for knowledge of the meaning of life and death in the face of nothingness provide the crux for his themes.

Foreign Student Greeters Needed In Host Program

The Student Host Program for foreign students will accept applications from students who wish to serve next semester as hosts for newly arrived foreign students. Applications will be taken Monday and Tuesday in the Snack Bar foyer and Thursday and Friday in the Del Rio Room from 10 a.m. through 2 p.m.

Charlene Craver, former student host, said that the program has been sponsored by several groups on campus for the purpose of aiding the foreign student who is just arriving in a strange country and community to become acquainted with aspects of our culture and with some of the specifics of getting adjusted as an American college student.

As each foreign student is accepted for admission to the college, he is assigned to a volunteer student host, usually someone of the same sex and major. From this point the student host usually writes the student introducing himself, offering assistance on his arrival and sending an identification card.

Sometimes the student host will make specific arrangements to meet the foreign student at the airport or train station on his arrival.

When the foreign student arrives a few days before the beginning of the semester, the student host may help him to find a place to stay (with the aid of the Housing Office), introduce him to laundromats, checking accounts, bus service, supermarkets, and numerous details and ways of life which are new to the foreign student. During registration the student host can help the foreign student see an adviser and will receive a special badge permitting him to enter the gym during registration to help the foreign student through the bewildering aspects of registration.

This semester there will be an orientation program for student hosts following their selection. Later a time will be set when the hosts can meet the host families in Sacramento in order to further aid the new foreign student.

Two foreign students, Paul Kodzon, a freshman mechanical engineering major from Rhodesia, and Jollin Young, social welfare major from Hong Kong, both had student hosts and declared them extremely helpful, particularly by aiding in schedule planning and registration.

If unable to obtain an application next week, students can pick them up in the office of Nina Westcott, co-ordinator of international programs, Administration 259.

the newspaper and its advertising policies. The resolution called for a signing of contracts for advertising of similar nature (those that dealt with students and student government) by the editor-in-chief and the business manager and the label of advertising be stamped on the contract while a definite rate would be implied before the advertisement would be run.

In addition the code of ethics of the American Newspaper Association for journalism was brought to attention and adoption into the policy manual. A guidline for the business department was also adopted to go into the policy manual. This calls for a reserve of at least $1,000 to be used for expansion of the newspaper as the editor deems necessary. As it exists now, if the paper were to be expanded when news warranted it, the editor would have to go through the BOP and ask to expand. This was an attempt to free the newspaper of the existing financial obligation to be able to expand only when the board met.

Chris Bradfield presented to the board a proposal that The Student be allocated funds from the ASSSC. Procedures were explained and questions were answered concerning the feasibility of another on campus newspaper. Financial obligations to the BOP was stressed but the BOP said it liked the idea of having another paper to present more student dialogue.

Marine Laboratory Sets Open House

Moss Landing Marine Laboratory, recently purchased by five central California State Colleges, SSC, Fresno State, San Jose State, San Francisco State and Cal State at Hayward, will hold an open house for interested faculty and staff Saturday, Jan. 8, from 9 a.m. through 5 p.m.

The Laboratory is to be a functional extension of the five campuses participating in the purchase and operation of this new facility. Classes will begin in the summer of 1966 and will be offered on a year-round basis.

It is hoped that as many as possible will visit the laboratory during the open house in order to acquaint faculty, graduates and undergraduates with the new program.

Moss Landing, to be officially known as the Monterey Bay Marine Sciences Laboratories of the Central California State Colleges is located approximately half way between Santa Cruz and Monterey on the Monterey Bay.

Hornet Trainer Named To Athletic Foundation Board

Lew Crowl, head athletic trainer at Sacramento State College, has been named a member of the board of directors of the Bike Training Room Foundation, a national organization devoted to the improvement of physical safety techniques in high school athletics.

Established in 1963, the Foundation stimulates recognition of the need for more adequate measures in high school athletics by working directly with the officials and trainers of individual schools.

Additionally, the Foundation offers self-help ideas and plans, as well as direct financial grants-in-aid to deserving schools to insure proper equipment and supplies.

Crowl, along with four other nationally-known athletic trainers appointed at the same time, will direct the activities of the Foundation. Each is a member of he National Athletic Trainers Association and an acknowledged leader in his field. Besides his association with NATA, Crowl also holds professional membership in the American Physical Therapy Association and the American Registry of Physical Therapy.

During his undergraduate days at Ohio State, Crowl worked as a student trainer under Ernie Briggs, a trustee of the Bike Training Room Foundation. Upon graduation in 1958, he became a full-time member of the Ohio State Staff until 1961, when he came to Sacramento State College. In 1964, he received his M.S. in physical therapy at Ohio State.

Hornets Open 1966 Rugby Campaign

By DAVE BOWLING

Sacramento State's Rugby Club will travel to San Jose tomorrow to meet the Peninsula Ramblers in a game slated to start at 1:30 p.m.

In a sport relatively new at SSC, the Hornets exhibit some experience. Last season saw the Hornets play as an independent team in the Northern California Rugby Union. Player Frank Ruggiero reports this years squad has some fine new material with great potential.

Ruggiero noted that this year's competition was only possible through "lots of help and student support," for only just recently did they raise the insurance money needed in order to participate in league play.

On the other hand, the Peninsula Ramblers are a well established team. They are an experienced Bay Area Rugby team, and are ranked internationally as well as nationally. "They are a very good team and we expect a fine game," commented Ruggiero.

A few of the players expected to see action in tomorrow's battle are Ken Brooks, Bill Hunger, Joe Cavallero, Mark O'Conell, Dick Zimmerman, Kim Wilson and Ruggiero.

Deadline for Overseas Study applications is Jan. 13. For further information contact Administration 259 or call 454-6379.

Grapplers Tangle With Cossacks

The Hornet wrestling team will be seeking its first win of the season tomorrow afternoon when they travel to Sonoma to take on the Sonoma State Cossacks.

The green and gold is wrestling in its first year of intercollegiate competition and although inexperienced, the Hornets have faired well in all their matches so far this season.

Coach Don Cumley's team dropped its third in a row over the holidays, losing to Humboldt State, 27-8.

The Box Seat

By Lou Chicconi

Pre-season Far Western Conference basketball ratings favor the University of Nevada, yet can't help but feel Chico State will be right in the thick of things again this year.

The Wildcats tied for the FWC crown last year, then bowed to SF State in the playoff for post-season regional tournament representation. Through graduation, the Wildcats lost only Terry Hughes, a fine guard, and Billy Treglown, a very fine guard.

Treglown was voted to the All-FWC second team. He was Chico's second leading scorer at 16.7 points per game. His outside shooting will be missed unless unsung heroes emerge from the Chico undergrowth.

The big man to watch is Billy Jones. Listed at 6-3, Jones can jump with the seven-footers. Voted last year's MVP at the Chico Tournament, Jones made the first team this year, missing MVP only because the Wildcats dropped a 91-75 decision to Central Washington in the title game.

But Jones isn't all the Wildcats have used to accomplish eight wins in their first dozen outings this year. The club has scoring balance and speed, with very little height. Among the regulars, Kelly Bane, second team selection in the recent Chico tourney, is the tallest at 6-4. Other than Jones, all are shorter than 6-1. Even the Hornets have better height than the Northerners.

Yet shooting finesse is what coach Dr. Don Scott has installed in all his players. In each of their two victories in the tournament at Chico, the Wildcats had five boys scoring in double figures.

Although Jones' 21 points led Chico to the opening 85-76 victory over Cal Lutheran, young Jim Lambrecht jumped off the bench and popped in 17. His performance in a reserve role overshadowed that of Jones and three other Chico starters who scored in double figures.

Dan King, sixth man last year who gave the impression of another erratic Cliff Hagan, matched Jones' 25 in Chico's 100-78 rout of Pasadena in the second game. The Wildcats met more than their match in Central Washington with Hepworth, Cox and the gang. Hepworth, who tanked 25 and grabbed off 20 rebounds in CW's 77-74 win over SSC in the tourney opener, succeeded Jones as the tourney MVP.

Marc Conrad, who earned FWC honorable mention last year, has been playing consistent ball for the red and white. Marc is the son of Warren Conrad, Hornet's first cage coach during 1949-52. Conrad, incidentally, is the only Hornet basketball coach to post a winning record during his reign here. In his four years, Conrad was 46-45. Shelton was 77-82 coming into this year.

Chico finished last season at 16-9, 9-3 in league action. With eight returning lettermen including a nucleus of Jones, Bane, Conrad and King, the Wildcats should offer rigid competition to Nevada and any other team that might stiffen up in the 1966 FWC cage race.

FROSH CAGERS MEET ZOOMIES

Coach Jack Heron's frosh cagers took a holiday breather after dropping a 76-52 decision to the University of the Pacific yearlings just before the Christmas recess.

Four of the five Tiger starters scored in double figures as the Wasps lost their fourth game of the season against two wins. Bud Jones poured in 24 points for Pacific. He was followed by Pat Foley, a former prep star at C. K. McClatchy high school with 15, Tom DeWitt with 12, and Tom Jones with 10.

Walt Slider collected 18 points for the Wasps, and Maury Costa added 12 to the losing cause.

The roof fell in on the Wasps early with UOP grabbing a 37-19 halftime lead, and then holding off a Wasp surge for the win.

The club was idle over the vacation, resuming their workouts Monday.

Tomorrow, the frosh will travel to McClellan AFB to meet the Jets in a game scheduled for 2 p.m. McClellan traditionally has one of the top service basketball teams. SSC will counter with Slider, Costa, and Bruce McNeeley, who are averaging 16.7, 11.3, and 11 points respectively. Slider and Bob Michelotti head the rebounding department.

Thursday the Wasps will play Hamilton AFB at Sacramento High School in a preliminary game to the contest between Phillips' 66'ers of Oklahoma City and Salta Pontiac of Sacramento.

RAIN WASHES OUT SSC-HSC GAME

Gymnasts To Meet Long Beach State

By MARK STANEART

Coach Arno Lascari's Sacramento State gymnasts are set for a 7:30 meeting with Long Beach State College on the SSC court tonight.

Long Beach boasts some of the top individual performers in Southern California but Lascari feels that the new scoring system under which the teams compete favors the Hornets with their greater depth.

Under the new system, the top three point getters in each event for each team count toward the final total. A team with one top performer in an event can easily be beaten by a team with three weaker but equal competitors.

The leading performers for the Hornets should be Larry Topping and Steve Pleau, both all-around; Scott Gardiner, trampoline; and Dave Niemand in the high bar, parallel bars, and trampoline. Also competing for the Hornets will be Marty Walden, side horse; Chuck Nelson, trampoline; Glen Schmidt, parallel bars; and Phil Ito, Terry McCade, and Mike Knight on the still rings.

The top attraction in tonight's meet should be Long Beach's Fred Seabom who competes in the still rings, parallel bars, and the side horse.

Viet Nam Topic Of Speech By Recent Visitor

The Cultural Programs Committee will present a Distinguished Visitors' Program featuring Edward C. Britton, professor of education at SSC.

He will be speaking to the topic, "Vietnamese Youth and Social Service," at 12 noon in the Little Theater on Jan. 10.

Britton has recently returned from Viet Nam where he has served for several months on a grant supported by the Rand Corporation. He has made six previous trips over there.

Britton received his BA and MA from the University of Alberta in Edmonton, Canada, and his Ed.D. from Stanford University. He came to SSC in 1950 and for the past three years has been in Viet Nam as an education consultant while on leave from the college. He is well qualified to speak on his topic and according to the DVD committee which believes that his talk on experiences in Viet Nam will be most interesting.

NETTER ENTER LEAGUE ACTION WITH 2-9 PRE-SEASON MARK

Coming off holiday tournaments, the Hornet cagers move into league competition at Humboldt tonight. The SSC squad managed a mediocre 2-4 record over the vacation and now have run their season total to a 2-9 mark. After falling to Chapman 106-77, and to UC at Riverside 97-82, Sacramento edged Redlands 78-71. Up north in the Chico Tourney, the Hornets again dropped the opener to Central Washington State 77-74. On their next outings, the locals displayed great shooting and reached a season high as they defeated Cal Poly (SLO) 90-87. The tournament closed as the Hornets lost a squeaker to Willamette 77-74 in overtime.

So far this year, Ev Shelton's men have averaged 83 points per contest. Three players are in double figures including Lynn Livie with 27, John Livie with 18 and Bob Ferrel with 10.

Bob Ferrel leads in the rebounding category with 95, followed by Dick Palmer's 75 and Mike Syas' 74.

Sacramento now prepares for their first of 13 FWC games. With continued high scoring and a little more defense, the Hornets could be considered a dark horse in the league.

The University of Nevada should be the team to beat as they have four starters returning from last year's squad including Bill Nicholson, Larry Moore and Nap Montgomery. Their chances could be hampered, however, as an automobile accident has temporarily sidelined part of the team.

Chico State, led by Billy Jones and Kelly Bane, could finish near the top, but a lack of guard strength could hurt.

Defending champion San Francisco State, the perenial conference kings, will have Everett Adams and Joe Galbo, along with big Crawford at center. They, too, will be hard to keep out of the number one position.

Humboldt State does not expect to challenge FWC contenders this year, but the Hornets will have to play well to record a win, considering how tough a challenge road games offer.
